Money

Money magazine just released their list of the 100 Best Places to Live for 2017. Reston ranks #29.

"Reston was once just an idea. In the early 1960s, architect and economist Robert E. Simon mapped out a vision for a community that upheld open space, recreational facilities, and aesthetic beauty.

Today, the thriving Washington, D.C., suburb offers a woodsy atmosphere that includes expanses of parks, lakes, golf courses, and ... paths. Over 50 miles of pathways were designed to weave in and around its communities to increase pedestrian safety and to ensure that most residents' homes were no more than a half-mile walk to village centers."

We must fight to preserve our "expanses of parks, lakes, golf courses, and ... paths."
